Ocean Avenue changes in the past few days include: The disappearance of Whitney's restaurant; torn-up sidewalk at the Harrison Memorial Library; stop signs to halt traffic coming down the hill above Junipero Street and going up below Junipero. They were installed to protect pedestrians crossing Ocean north and south.

Whitney's will open again at the same location, when the Doud building is completed.

National news last week contained items of personal interest to two local persons.

Mrs. Valerio Giusi was delighted to learn of the release of RB47 flier Captain Freeman Olmstead. She has known the Olmstead family since student days at Syracuse University.

Dr. Talcott Bates was interested to learn that his stepsister, Dr. Janet Travell, has been appointed the first White House woman physician by President Kennedy.

Carmel Mothers' March volunteers, Tuesday evening, collected $1,864.48 for the Monterey County chapter of the New March of Dimes. Carmel Valley volunteers collected $180.27. Mothers' March total for the Peninsula was $6,412.27. This exceeds by $2,000 the amount collected last year during the Mothers' March, closing event of the March of Dimes fund campaign.

Art Association Invites Public To Party Saturday

Carmel residents are invited to an open house on Saturday afternoon, 3:00-5:00 o'clock, at the Carmel Art Association Gallery. The public is asked to inspect the remodeled and enlarged galleries, meet association officers and board members at this time. Active and associate members will act as hosts and hostesses. Punch and cake will be served.

The committee in charge of the community affair are Jessie MacGregor, chairman, assisted by Feg Murray, Edith Dinkin and Kathryn Aurner.

A closed party for members of the Carmel Art Association will be given later in the spring.

A scattering of studios on the piney slope above Carmel Beach, lasting friendships with the gifted artists working there, a growing concern that with no permanent museum or gallery, the tradition of art production in Carmel might prove ephemeral rather than lasting—these are the memories of Nelly (Mrs. John E.) Montague.

"When people go to an exhibition of art, they have no idea the work it's taken to put it together," Mrs. Montague said this week. But her words were spoken in enthusiasm and not complaint as she strove along with other Peninsula members of the American Federation of Arts to make the group's current show, held in collaboration with the Monterey Peninsula College, the success it deserves to be. The Collectors' Exhibition at the college library, runs through Thursday, February 6.

Mrs. Montague, who moved back to Carmel last year after a decade away, was one of the guiding spirits behind the founding of the year-old Monterey Peninsula Chapter of the Federation of Arts. She was also president of the interim board which steered the new group from its original membership of 17 to its present figure of 316.

"We've had a rapid growth but we are not going to be one of those bubbles that blows up and then bursts," Mrs. Montague said.

Perhaps more than any other single person, this petite and attractive lady, who glows with a special radiance when she talks of Carmel past and present, has been the godparent of the arts on the Monterey Peninsula.

Her late father, Matthew Murphy, called Colonel Murphy by everyone, first brought her with the rest of his family to Carmel in 1910 to live on the famous old "professors' row," street of homes of Stanford University faculty and administrators.

After her marriage Mrs. Montague came back again, after having managed to infuse in her husband the same kind of love she herself had for the town.

"During all this time, I had at-

Planners Approve First Gas Station On Junipero Street

Wednesday afternoon, Carmel planning commissioners, sitting as a board of adjustments, granted the Standard Oil Company a use permit to construct a gas station at the northeast corner of Junipero Street and Fourth Avenue. A time limit of 20 years and six months was a condition of the permit.

Later, reconvened as a commission, they approved construction plans for the station.

Other conditions for the Standard Oil permit were that no merchandise or vending machines may be exhibited outside the station; no repairs to autos, other than those of a minor nature, may be made on the gas station premises.

Only commissioner to oppose the use permit was J. B. Martin Jr.

J. O. Handley, speaking for the C-2 Property Owners Association, objected to the time limit. He stated his group had no objection to the gas station in C-2 zone, only area in Carmel where such new development is allowed under the new zoning ordinance. The time limit, however, was a further restriction on property already restricted by the ordinance, Mr. Handley emphasized.

Admiral C. W. Fisher, president of the Citizens Committee, objected to the use permit on the grounds that a gas station in the proposed location was contrary to the character of Carmel.

James Pruitt spoke against the commission's taking the rights of an owner away by placing a time

No Protection Here Against Vicious Dogs

Mrs. Alice Boulter, Camino Real between Ninth and Tenth Avenues, asked the Pine Cone yesterday to request Carmel owners of large dogs to make sure they are confined before leaving them unattended.

Recently she was walking along Scenic Drive between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues. Two large dogs ran barking at her from the yard of a residence. One, a Doberman, attacked her, the other retreated to the yard. The Doberman bit her on the thigh, she says. Her clothing protected her from the dog's teeth but she received a severe bruise.

The dog attempted to attack her a second time, but she was rescued by a passing motorist, the second driver she hailed for help. This man escorted her until she was a block from her home.

Mrs. Boulter reported the incident to Carmel police. Their investigations revealed the dog belonged to Joel Thomas, occupant of The Sand Box on Scenic Drive. Police had received previous complaints about Thomas' dogs.

Monday, Bernard Donahoe reported to Carmel police that he had been bitten by a dog belonging to Mrs. Genevieve Bartholomew, Ocean and Santa Fe. His pants were torn and the skin of his left leg broken, he said. He received treatment from his doctor, and the county pound has notified the owner to keep the dog penned until they can determine whether or not the dog is rabid.

On December 24, 1960 Tom Yale charged that Mrs. Bartholomew's dog bit him on the leg while he was making a delivery for Carmel Florist. Mrs. Bartholomew said that he kicked the dog.

Humane Society officer, Jules O. Kahofer, on the request of Mrs. Bartholomew's neighbors, signed a complaint on October 11, 1960, charging her with failing to "give proper care and attention to her nine dogs." At the trial in Municipal Court November 7, Mrs. Bartholomew's attorney asked for a "directed verdict" (case not proven) and got it.

The police department cannot take the initiative in dog bite cases, Chief of Police Clyde Klaumann told the Pine Cone.

Carmel was forced to repeal its dog ordinance when it lost its city court at the time the municipal district court was created. At present, there are two methods of procedure for individuals who have been bitten by a dog, according to Police Chief Clyde Klaumann. They may go to the district attorney in an attempt to get the dog declared a nuisance and disposed of; or they may bring civil suit to recover damages. The city police are called upon by the district attorney to investigate when a nuisance complaint has been brought to him. They question the neighbors to find if a number of them are willing to support the complainant in his nuisance charge.

If an individual is not willing to take the initiative when he has been bitten, nothing more can be done and the dog remains to take another bite of another passerby.

No, the Pine Cone does not recommend the pedestrian go armed for his protection. If he had occasion to use his weapon, he could be arrested for discharging firearms in the city limits.

Leach Asks To Replace Oak With Flowering Plum

Most exotic item on the February tree tour which leaves city hall at 4:00 o'clock Wednesday afternoon:

Rupert Leach has asked council approval for replacing the oak tree in front of his Bib'n Tucker on Ocean Avenue with a flowering plum.

Mrs. W. E. Pulliam wants to trim the acacia trees at Casanova and Eighth. The council will look at the "declining" cypress trees on Del Mar Avenue. They will consider Lucile Nelson's request to apply oil and screening to reduce nuisance occasioned by cars turning around on the dead end of Casanova Street, and Charles A. Watson wants handrails on the approach to the Lincoln and Fourth Avenue footbridge.

Yates, Fehring Will Not Run For School Board

George Yates and Ted Fehring announced, through letters read at the school board last night, that they would not be candidates for re-election at the Carmel Unified School District Trustee Election April 18. Their terms expire July 1.

Last day for filing declaration of candidacy for the two vacancies is March 17.

The board authorized payment of $995,661 for the remainder of the Hatton property; and $19,121.47 for Schulte property, both to be used for school sites in Carmel Valley.

Chairman Fehring congratulated George Yates on the three and a half, instead of anticipated four cents interest in the sale of the school construction bonds, a saving to the district of $188,219.75, also, in re-investment of the bond money in U. S. Treasury bonds, notes and certificates until it is needed. This will yield the district $46,793 in interest.

"Generally school bond money is turned over to the county treasurer, and yields no interest to the district," Fehring pointed out.

Yates asked the board to take notice of "the tremendous assistance I had from Dudley Swim and Francis Molton."

Board approved the employment of Mrs. Florence Turner to replace Mrs. Sadie Martin as high school cafeteria manager; and of Mrs. Rose Pepperdine to the position previously held by Mrs. Turner.

HOME AND AWAY FOR THE PADRES THIS WEEKEND

Friday night, Carmel High's basketball squads play host to the Gonzales Spartans in triple-header action which could have a vital bearing on the B-division hoop chase. The Carmel varsity is currently deadlocked with Live Oak for the top spot in the heavyweight chase while Coach Harold Lippstreu's lightweights have put on a terrific surge in the last three weeks to establish themselves as the prime favorites to be the spoilers or the champions of the limited division. Coach Dick Lawitzke's junior-varsity gang, undefeated in league play this season, tangle with the Gonzales reserves in Friday night's 5:00 o'clock lid-lifter.

The Gonzales varsity ripped San Lorenzo Valley High, 72 to 46, last Friday night and is a dangerous foe when its fast break attack is allowed to function without adequate defense. In their first meeting this season, the Carmel heavies clobbered the Spartans, 45 to 24, as their superior height completely overwhelmed the stubby lads from the valley. However, tomorrow night's clash on the Carmel court could give the Spartans a big lift and raise the odds in favor of the Gonzales preps.

Carmel's lightweight squad, without a doubt the most improved team in the CCAL B-division, caught fire against Hollister a few weeks ago and has been a ball of fire ever since. The Little Padres shellacked the favored Pacific Grove Wavelets, dropped a close decision to the league-leading Gilroy crew, and upset the high-flying Live Oak Babes last weekend. Gonzales has always fielded a representative lightweight team and this year is no exception. The Spartan Babes are close on the heels of Gilroy and Pacific Grove for the league lead and will be going all out to halt the surging Padre Babes.

Coach Dick Lawitzke's junior-varsity squad has yet to taste defeat in league play this season and figures to handle the Spartan reserves without too much difficulty. With big Jim Kelley and Pete Morse on hand to sweep the backboards clean, the Padre reserves are formidable foes in all their encounters this season. Backing up Kelley and Morse is the clever ball-handling trio of Bob Palma, Ricky Baldwin, and Tony Belleci.

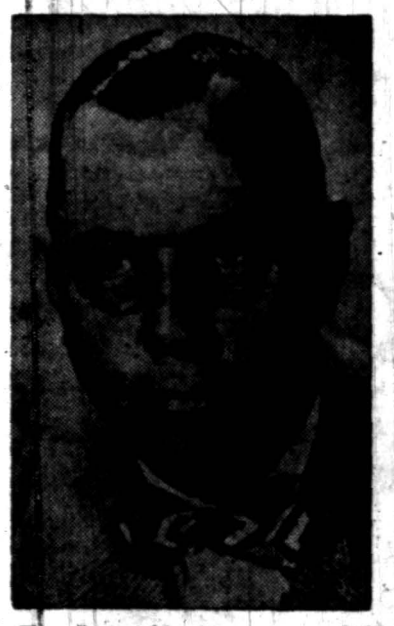
Carmel's varsity, hampered by the loss of injured Bob Forbes, has dropped its last two league games to Gilroy and Live Oak but figures to get well at the expense of the Spartans. Too much height appears to confront the Gonzales lads when they face the likes of Chris and John Wilkin, Bob Little, and Bud Cunningham. The Padres have to get over this one if they hope to meet the challenge of the enthusiastic Live Oak Acorns.

CARMEL-LIVE OAK SPLIT IN OCAL BASKETBALL

Upset in the varsity tilt and doing the upsetting in the lightweight fray, Carmel High's basketball squads got an even break against the Live Oak Acorns at Morgan Hill last Friday night. Figured to have a comparatively easy time with the Live Oak varsity, the rangy Carmel quintet was rudely jolted by the small Acorn five as it capitalized on all the Padre mistakes to hang a 42-35 decision on the league-leading Carmel gang. Steady team play and deadly accuracy at the free-throw line were the ingredients which got the job done against the Carmel hoopsters. While the Live Oak team was ultra-consistent the Padres suffered one of their worst nights at the foul-line, hitting only 7-for-22. The free-wheeling Carmel unit pumped through 14 field goals while the hosts were meshing 12 but the Green and Gold took advantage of the charity offerings to eke out the decision.

While the Carmel varsity took its lumps from the fired-up Live Oak heavies, the Carmel lightweights got well at the expense of the slightly over-confident Acorn Babes by sneaking past them, 46 to 39. Lightly regarded before the tilt commenced, the Little Padres parlayed Teddy Leidig's excellent 24-point shooting performance with the fine floor play of Bob Moffatt, Jack DeWitt, Steve Johnson, and Jose Fernandez to completely outplay the Morgan Hill gang.

Bob Little, taped-up a la the Boston Celtic's Bob Cousy, led his mates in the scoring department, meshing four field goals and two free-throws for a game-high of ten points. Mike Draper pumped through eight points for runner-up in the point-making department and Jim Brown, fast-improving junior, chipped in with six markers. The outplayed Padres were down 19-8 at the quarter, 23-14 at the halftime intermission, 31-28 at the end of the third quarter, and finally bowed out, 42 to 35.



Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, travel film producer Curtis Nagel will show his color movie Portrait of Paris for members of the Carmel Woman's Club. He will be assisted by Leslie Deck of Carmel as projectionist. The picture depicts places of interest in Paris and its environs with narration by Mr. Nagel.

Mrs. C. Tod Singleton will preside at the meeting. Mrs. Joseph Ewing, program chairman, will introduce Mr. Nagel. Hostesses will be Mrs. Wallace Lowry, membership chairman, Mrs. Clifton Beckwith and Mrs. Lawrence Lyon. Mrs. Carl E. Rasmussen, hospitality chairman, will have as her tea committee for the afternoon Mrs. Frank Creede, Mrs. J. A. Balen, Mrs. Harry E. Outcault and Mrs. William H. Satchell. Mrs. F. P. Spratt and Mrs V. R. Woodruff will preside at the tea tables. Mrs. F. L. Knudsen, chairman of the decorations committee, will be in charge of flower arrangements.

County Symphony Youth Concert On Feb. 4 In The Grove

The Monterey County Symphony Association and the Monterey Peninsula League will present the sixth annual free Youth Concert on February 4 in Pacific Grove High School auditorium at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. School bus transportation will be provided for Carmel children.

Ronald Ondrejka, conductor of the Monterey County Symphony, will explain the four instrument families in the 85-piece orchestra. The string group demonstration will be made in Prelude to Solomon by Handel; the woodwinds in Concerto A Minor, Vivaldi and Symphonie Concertante in E flat Major by Mozart; the brasses by trumpet, trombone and tuba players; percussion by tympani; bass and snare drum, and cymbal players. The meaning of pizzicato will also be demonstrated.

As a finale the children will be asked to identify instruments while the orchestra plays the fourth movement of Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony.

SUNDAY MASS MISSION AT CARMEL BASILICA

The subject for the second Sunday Mission Sermon at the Carmel Basilica will be Sin, the Pallbearer of Character.

Father Walter Anthony, Paulist missionary, will preach at all six Sunday morning Masses—7:00, 8:00, 9:00, 10:00, 11:00 and 12:00 o'clock.

Music On The Peninsula

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

The Honor Orchestra and Choir concert at Sunset last Saturday, presented by the Californian Music Educators Association, was an event which clearly demonstrated the musical attainment, to date, of the various high schools of Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove, Salinas, Santa Cruz, Watsonville, Hollister, San Lorenzo and Gonzales, and reflected great credit on their directors, John Farr, Clifford Anderson, Morris Dill, Gary Beswick, Esther Ingham, Irvin Smith, Dick Tyler, Norman Walters and others. The young players' preparation had been thorough for they responded admirably to Ronald Ondrejka, conductor of the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra, in some arrangements of the classics which, though not too difficult, required understanding. The entire performance was a highlighted credit to all participants, and raised much enthusiasm from the audience.

The Choir of 162 voices, conducted by Jester Hairston and accompanied by Irvin Smith of San Lorenzo on a Hammond Organ lent by the Graham Music Company, was grouped along the front of the stage and made a formidable display of good-looking teenagers in their different colored robes as they sang without scores in clear, vibrant voices of youth. From no other school group have I recollection of hearing any singing so satisfactory. Precision, modulation and attention to their conductor were outstanding. Besides serious numbers, three characteristic songs by Jester Hairston (an experienced conductor of Festivals) as well as encore numbers, in which Hairston sang and got the audience singing and clapping along with the chorus, were exciting. Dedicated to his vocation, he is popular and many of the young people mobbed him on the stage afterwards to get his signature on their programs.

To evaluate what this school musical effort means to the future of America. It is hoped it will eventually arrive at the cultured opinion of the ancient Greeks who did not consider anyone educated without music study. Many of these young orchestral players may go into orchestras all over the country. The National Symphony League, that meets again in July at Asilomar, has helped to bring into prominence this major force for development and peace while America is today leading the whole world in the amount of musical enterprise, now recorded as bigger business than sports!

Mackey Swan, baritone, was presented in recital at the Wharf Opera House in Monterey, Sunday evening, by the Peninsula Church of Religious Science, a benefit for the Church, and drew a large and appreciative audience. Why work of an artist giving services for a benefit should be left out of reporting is strange to me, so praise of one of the most artistic and enjoyable song recitals ever given here is the artist's due. Swan has a notable record of professional appearances in Europe and America. He is a consummate artist. Except for my recollection of the great German leider singer Wollner, no other excels what Swan did in the Schumann and Strauss groups as well as the opera excerpts of his rich program. His dramatic sense never misses the mark and his pianissimos are the essence of tender and sympathetic tone. Like Wollner, it is not a question of voluptuousness of voice, and Swan has plenty, but what is done with it to express the soulful feeling and intent of the poet and the composer. Here, in our midst is another artist of distinction and we hope he may be heard again with the Monterey County Symphony. Lyn Swan, his wife, accompanied him with facility, and the two were recalled many times for encores and were mobbed with congratulations back stage.

The Winter Concert of the Hartnell College Chorus was given with the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra on Sunday at the Salinas High School to a good attendance in late afternoon. Ronald Ondrejka conducted the Orchestra and Vahe Aslanian music director of the college, handled the Chorus with the orchestra in Handel's Dettinger Te Deum in D major written for a Thanksgiving service in the Chapel Royal at St. James' to commemorate the victory of English and Hanoverian armies over the French and Russians at Dettinger in 1743. Two Concertos, a Vivaldi for Piccolo in C major and the one for two violins in D minor by J. S. Bach, comprised the orchestral half of the program under Ondrejka. The modern use of the piccolo is frequent in orchestral works but a concerto for that instrument is rare, for its piercing quality does not lend itself to a sympathetic modulation like the flute or oboe. But in spite of its difficulties, Fabrizio managed the performance with his accustomed dexterity and skill, accompanied by the orchestra. It was received by the audience with enthusiasm. Bach's famous composition was given a reading by John Erickson and Guy Beswick, first violin leaders of the symphony. The three movements received a somewhat perfunctory rendition, though a solo portion in the Largo that fell to Beswick stood out with more flexibility and sympathetic tone. No matter what happens, Ondrejka composedly keeps performances together with his scholarly conducting. Much has yet to be learned in stage deportment by some members, particularly an appreciative attitude for applause where audiences are accustomed to deeply bowed "thank yous" for so much is gained by a good personal "rapport" between artist and audience. Six soloists out of the Hartnell Chorus sang parts in the Handel Te Deum, all somewhat at a disadvantage because of standing behind the orchestra, mostly with eyes on their scores. These were

A civil engineer of Carmel, George C. Bestor, former president of the California Council of Civil Engineers and Land Surveyors, was awarded a special citation by the organization at its convention just closed in Santa Barbara, for perfection in master planning, on the basis of his proposed development plan for Laguna Seca Ranch, a 984-acre parcel owned by Frank C. Bishop, lying northerly of the Monterey-Salinas Highway, six miles east of Monterey and 13 miles southwest of Salinas.

Everett Mansur, himself a planning consultant of national reputation and a member of the City Planning Committee of the American Society of Civil Engineers, was chairman of the board of judges which made the selection of Bestor's plan.

In making the award to Bestor, Mansur said of the Plan, which was on display during the meeting, it is "an elaborate brochure prepared by Mr. Bestor and a staff of engineers and planners, of the proposed development of nearly 1,000 acres into a self-contained community for over 5,500 persons. This demonstrates the advantages and desirability of a combination of civil engineering and city planning in solving a problem. It is a thorough plan based on analysis of the kind of information that should be considered by engineers and planners in determining alternatives for land development and use."

Bestor told the Pine Cone that the remarkable attitude of the property owners; their desire to see the land developed in harmony with aesthetic values, gave him the freedom necessary for creating the prize winning plan. He also gave credit to Sidney Franklin, property development consultant. Through his co-operation Bestor has been able to arrange streets and roads (subject to county approval) so that almost all of the beautiful oaks can be saved.

limit on the development of property in C-2 zone.

Patricia Hall also spoke against the station. Her objections were based on the premise that a large corporation should not benefit at the expense of "the welfare of our dear little town."

Chairman Herbert Blanks explained that C-2 zone is open to gas stations with the granting of use permits as the only control. He urged other commissioners to reopen study of the gas station situation in Carmel.

The 20 years and six months time limit was made to allow reasonable time for gas station use and amortization of the property, plus six months allowed for construction time, according to commissioners.

Commissioners approved P-1 (natural park) zoning for a strip of public land on the southeast side of Serra at the intersection of Carpenter Street.

They approved P-2 (natural park with some recreational development) for the city-owned tennis courts.

Chairman Blanks appointed Commissioners Dorothy von Meier, Florence Josselyn and George Willox as members of a committee to make a study of off-street parking as requested by the city council. Mr. Blanks authorized the city clerk to send letters to the Carmel business association and city council asking that two members of the association and one councilman be appointed to act in an advisory capacity to this commission study committee.

Revised plans, submitted by the Blair Development Company for construction of six shops and three offices around a court on the east side of Lincoln Street above Sixth Avenue, were approved.

Wilderness Of The West

A monthly column by
C. Edward Graves

25. AN OPEN LETTER TO THE HON. ORVILLE L. FREEMAN, NEWLY APPOINTED SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE.

December 31, 1960

Dear Governor Freeman:

I should like to congratulate you on your appointment as Secretary of Agriculture. I am particularly interested in the work that you will be doing, because the Forest Service is in your department and its attitude on the question of wilderness preservation is a critical one.

I am sure that you are familiar with Senator Humphrey's Wilderness Bill and I hope that under you the Forest Service will support it sincerely, not just nominally. However, there is an even deeper ingrained problem that you could be instrumental in solving. I am thinking of the refusal of the present Chief Forester and his staff to allow Congress and the American people to decide whether some of the present Forest Service lands should become a part of the national park system.

With our rapidly exploding population, the wilderness areas that are preserved in the next few years are all that will ever be preserved. We must act quickly before the choices lands are all logged off. As you know, certain areas in the North Cascades of Washington, and in several other parts of the West, have been proposed for national park status and the Department of the Interior is ready to make a preliminary survey to determine their suitability for the national park system, but the retiring Secretary of Agriculture has refused to allow such a survey to be made.

It is the contention of all wilderness preservationists that the public lands belong to the people of the country and that the Forest Service is merely their custodian for the people and not for the logging interests. A preliminary survey by the National Park Service would lay the facts before Congress and the people and a decision in the best public interest could then be made. This is in accordance with the well-established democratic processes of this country and I hope that you will support this viewpoint. The relatively few areas that might be incorporated in the national park system as a result of this action would have practically no effect on the economy of the whole country and as national parks, the travel that they would stimulate would offset all of this loss.

The Forest Service states in its publication, Timber Resources for America's Future: "The key to adequate timber supplies in the future lies within the four and a half million farm and other private holdings". It is my hope that the Department of Agriculture may see the wisdom of concentrating its activities in this field, thus freeing a few more wildlands areas for permanent preservation.

Very sincerely,
C. Edward Graves,
Conservation Chairman,
Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society.

Chest Makes Goal, All Agencies To Get Budget Allocations

The Board of Directors of the Monterey Peninsula Community Chest yesterday unanimously approved the report submitted by Richard Bennett, chairman of the budget committee, recommending the final approval of the 1961 allocations as adopted for pre-campaign purposes on June 6, 1960, and further recommending that all such allocations to the 20 Community Chest agencies be paid to the agencies during the year 1961.

The Chest goal was set at $160,000 and of this amount funds to the amount of $157,770.50 were allocated.

In commenting on the favorable action of the Budget Committee President Rollo H. Payne of the Community Chest said, "This is the first time in the 31 years' history of the Chest that full payment of pre-campaign allocations has been available to all agencies.

I always feel comfortable in this bank!

"'Comfortable' may sound like a funny word to use, but that's just the way I feel here at the bank. They certainly do everything possible to make you feel welcome at Wells Fargo American Trust! It's so convenient to have this branch close to the places where I shop. And I never hesitate to ask the manager any questions about our banking.

"That's why our checking, our savings, our safe deposit box, the children's accounts—everything—is here. It's really our family bank."

WATER OF FAITH

In our desert world
Of sand-storm chaos
And arid greed
You are an oasis,
Whose pure water of faith
Quenches the thirst
Of our peril-shadowed lives.

—Lucia Trent

NOW SHALL I TAKE MY SORROW TO THE SEA

Now shall I take my sorrow to the sea,
Go gray, go cold, go heavy to that shore
Where I have borne my bitterness before.
Where waves that know no woe shall mourn for me,
Thunder and burst in snowy ecstasy
And sigh, receding, I shall go once more
And into that profound Pacific pour
My small salt drops of human misery.

Then winds will beat and bend me; I shall stand
My ground with cypress till the glassy swell
Shall wash me free to be with driftwood dried
And worn exceeding fine with shifting sand.
So shall I shelter in some cast-off shell
And trust for sustenance the constant tide.

—Jean Sewell Standish

WILD GEESE IN FLIGHT

High in the overcast of night
I hear the plaintive "honk, honk-honk",
Of wild geese southward bound;
Their rhythmic flight
Unerring in its journeying
In the V-shape of tradition, eons old.
I wonder where and how
Their protocol established—
Since they seem to hold formation
Without wavering;—nor question.
The right of one or other
Matters not;—so paramount
The firm intent of their migration.

—Grace R. Ballard

THIS DAY

No word is worthy of this day.
Crystalline is too cold,
Too clear;
Perfect . . . too exacting,
Too severe.

The air
Rinsed by rain,
Whittled by wind,
Mellows in sun.
Grass rolls green over the hills
While gardens are adrift with yellow leaves.

This day uncalendars the weather,
Brings fire of Spring
And wine of Fall
Together.

—Mary Child

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

Last week we said that this column would discuss good old books enjoyed by the various staff members of the library, and after reading the pieces they handed in we decided to devote two weeks to old books instead of one. Certainly the enjoyments registered here are diversified and evidence variety of interests, just as do the backgrounds of the people themselves. In each case it seemed that something in the person's background dictated the reason for delight in the particular book reviewed. This must be true of readers just as it is of writers, which is our philosophical thought for the day.

In 1946, Rumer Godden wrote Thus Far and No Further. Our Reference Librarian, Mrs. Edson, liked it and has this to say about it. "A collection of essays, recorded conversations and reflections on life, written while the author was living on a tea estate in India. The plantation was in the high Himalayas, and although the author was accompanied by her two small daughters, their governess, and a host of servants, it was a rather solitary existence. Miss Godden writes with deceptive simplicity—an almost lace-like delicacy—but she is quite ruthless in some of these miniatures. There is a poetic quality to the descriptions of her life during these lonely months, but all is not fey! There is an equal interest in the ordinary and extraordinary, leaving the reader, on the whole, with a strong feeling of serenity."

Our Children's Librarian is Pauline Heisinger, and she enjoyed Beyond the Dark Hills by Jesse Stuart. Of this book Mrs. Heisinger says, "Born in Kentucky of poor tenant farmers, this autobiography of Jesse Stuart emphasizes the American conviction that with native ability and persistence, anyone can overcome the obstacles of environment. His overwhelming desire for an education, managed under almost unbelievable obstacles, and the fulfillment of his desire to write about his people of the Kentucky hill country, is told simply and directly. The book is packed with colorful incidents, told with a natural poet's observation."

Our third review for this week was done by Mrs. Maxine Shore, who works behind the scenes in the Order and Catalog Departments. Her book is a 1948 imprint novel by Dodie Smith, and it is entitled I Capture the Castle. Mrs. Shore says, "I Capture the Castle has an unusual kind of charm. The setting is an ancient, half-ruined castle in modern England, inhabited by an impoverished, artistic, and highly individualistic family. The heroine of the book, impulsive, adaptable, and sensitive Cassandra Mortmains, records the events, which are sometimes touching but more frequently hilarious. Yet this is not a book for young people, but for those discriminating adults who appreciate them and who also remember the joys and heartaches of that bewildering process known as 'growing up.' Everyone may not like this one, but those who do will be completely captured—like the castle."

The background basis for the interest? The book laid in India was reviewed by a woman who has lived in many foreign places and traveled in many more, Mrs. Edson. Mrs. Heisinger's parents were born in Kentucky and she has visited there many times so she enjoys a book about the people of Kentucky hill country. Mrs. Shore writes and has had published several books for young people, and so she loves to read books about the growing-up age. And this brings us to the slogan of several years ago during National Library Week, which was "Something for everyone at your public library".

Understanding God Answers Problems Says Ralph Cessna

There is no problem that an enlightened understanding of God cannot solve, Ralph W. Cessna of Chicago told an audience here Tuesday evening.

Speaking on the subject, Christian Science: The Way to Understanding, Happiness, and Healing, he declared that true health and happiness depend upon spiritual understanding of God's goodness and His ever-presence.

A Christian Science teacher and practitioner, Mr. Cessna is on extensive tour as a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship. He spoke under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel in the church edifice Monte Verde near Sixth Street. He was introduced by Mrs. Florence Payne, First Reader.

Assuring his audience that there is a God, a God that can and must be knowable, the lecturer compared various concepts of Deity.

"Human theories," he said, "tend to leave us with a God who is good, yes, to a degree, but who also creates and tolerates evil; who is big, but not ever-present; who is powerful, but not the only power; a God from whom we can be separated; in short a God who is not infinite, not supreme."

But, he added, "Christian Science reveals God as Spirit, universal, infinite, supreme . . . the ever-present Father-Mother who not only creates but forever loves, supports, and guides His children."

Mr. Cessna placed special emphasis in his lecture on this statement of Christ Jesus: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

"To be free, to gain that promised happiness and healing, we are directed to know the truth, to understand that God is good and is everywhere," he declared.

Loneliness, grief, illness, poverty, inadequacy—problems of every kind—can be met, he said, by gaining a practical understanding of the Christ, Truth.

"As we accept only thoughts in accord with Truth, thoughts of health," he declared, "the body reflects this, and is healthy. The very nature of your entire experience will be good in the proportion that your thinking is in accord with God's infinite goodness."

According to the teachings of Christian Science, he said, the man of God's creating is perfect, the spiritual idea of God—ever in harmony with the Father, infinite good.

Salinas Sponsors Carmelites In Free Chamber Concert

The friends of Music, a Salinas organization, is sponsoring a chamber concert, open to the public without charge, on Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock in the choral room of the Salinas High School.

Players are: first violin, Cecilie James of Carmel, a member of the Bach Festival and Monterey County Symphony orchestras; second violin, Kay Asplin, Carmel, who also plays with the same two orchestras; viola, David Hagemeyer, Carmel, member of the Symphony string section; clarinet, Ruth Hale of the County Symphony; cello, Mary Dobel, Carmel Valley music teacher and Bach Festival and Symphony player; and piano, Camille Olaeta, Monterey.

They will present the following program: Beethoven piano quartet, Op. 16, E flat major; Mozart clarinet quintet; and Schumann piano quintet, Op. 44.

The success of this campaign is a tribute to all of the people of this Monterey Peninsula area and to the excellent manner in which the current campaign has been conducted. The pattern has now been established and I hope and believe future campaigns will equal or better the campaign just completed."

Brayton Witherell, Executive Director and Campaign Manager of the Community Chest, who retires this month stated that this great Chest victory is the result of sacrifice and hard work by the many volunteers who have so unselfishly served the community. The many thousands who use the services of the Community Chest agencies owe a very great deal to those community minded volunteers, headed by Colonel C. E. Howland, USA, Retired, who served as general campaign chairman.

In commenting upon the difference between the publicized goal and the agency allocations Witherell said that donations to the Chest were still coming in and that there was every evidence that the small amount needed to reach the $160,000 goal would be collected before the official closing of the books for the 1961 Campaign, March 31st.

In the four years Witherell has served as Executive Director of the Chest the yearly collections have risen from $91,500 to $157,770, an increase of 72%.

Arline Bannerman Bride

A romance between two Carmel High School classmates culminated in marriage on Saturday afternoon when Arline Margaret Bannerman and Michael Joseph Carter exchanged wedding vows in Carmel Presbyterian Church. Dr. Joseph M. Ewing performed the double ring ceremony before the candlelit altar decorated with white chrysanthemums. Soft organ music was played while 150 relatives and friends gathered prior to the bride's entrance.

Arline was escorted to the altar by her father, James C. Bannerman, who gave her in marriage. The fitted bodice of her white satin gown had a round neckline and long sleeves ending in points at the wrist. Below a row of little satin roses at the back waistline, the full skirt of the dress fell into a train. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a crown of white roses worn by her sister-in-law, Mrs. James G. Bannerman, at her wedding. White carnations and bouvardia surrounded a white orchid in her cascade bouquet.

She was attended by her lifelong friend, Gayle Cullen of San Francisco, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the groom's sister, Kathy Carter, and Jean McEwen of Carmel. They were dressed alike in turquoise taffeta frocks, similar in style to the bride's, with teal taffeta roses at the waistline in back and touches of the same color on the bodice. Their veiled hats matched their dresses and they carried gardenia bouquets.

Doug McClurg was best man for the groom. Ushers were the bridegroom's uncle, Ronald Carter, and the bride's brother, James G. Bannerman.

Mrs. Bannerman attended her daughter's marriage in a purple jersey dress worn with lilac accessories and an orchid corsage. Her hat and shoes matched her gown.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Michael Joseph Carter Sr. of Carmel Valley, wore a plum-colored angora wool sheath dress with matching shoes and bag and a white orchid corsage. Her pillbox hat shaded through plum and rose to pink.

The reception following the ceremony was held at the home of the bride's parents in Hatton Fields. Arrangements of white stock and daffodils were placed about the house and the wedding party received before the living room fireplace.

The bridegroom's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Frank Doucette of Los Angeles, designed and made the decoration for the top of the wedding cake of her first grandchild. It was a tulle-trimmed heart shape enclosing miniature wedding symbols: a slipper, garter, penny, Bible, lovebirds and bride and groom.

After the bridal couple had cut their cake, the bride changed to a silk print dress with matching accessories and a carnation corsage before leaving with her husband for a honeymoon in San Francisco. They will make their home in Carmel.

The bride is a graduate of Sunset School and Carmel High School in 1960. She is now employed in a Carmel drug store.

Bishop Welch, Guest Preacher Sunday

Bishop Herbert Welch of New York City will be the guest preacher at the 11:00 o'clock morning service on Sunday at the Church of the Wayfarer. A frequent visitor to Carmel where he is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Anthony F. Blanks, Bishop Welch is the Senior Bishop of the Methodist Church and is now in his ninety-ninth year.

Ordained in 1890, he served with distinction in many parts of the world before his retirement in 1936. He was president of Ohio Wesleyan University and then Bishop in Japan and Korea from 1916 to 1928, also in Pittsburgh, and Shanghai, China. He was recalled from retirement to serve as Bishop in Boston and then headed the Methodist Committee for Overseas Relief from 1940 to 1948.

He has written books, served on interchurch groups like the National Council of Churches and Church World Service, and has been honored by his denomination as Methodist of the Year and by numerous universities and colleges. He was decorated by Japan with the Order of Sacred Treasure, made an honorary Citizen of Korea and decorated by the Republic of China.

Still active in many different areas of interest, Bishop Welch will preach on Sunday on the subject Life in Three Dimensions with Dr. K. Fillmore Gray conducting the service and preaching at the earlier 9:30 o'clock service.

Dorothy Petersen, soprano, Ruth Hailey and Ida Flournoy, contraltos. George Davis, tenor, Donald Stewart, baritone and Donald Johnson, bass. The choir was also glued to the score but managed sufficient voice and response to Aslanian's lively conducting.

The Zachary Solvo Ballet Ensemble, presented by the Peninsula Concert Association as the fourth event of this season, drew a packed house to the Pacific Grove High School. This excellent company, costumed as Russians, to music by Tschaikowsky, depicted youths' pleasures of a hundred years ago in characteristic dances of various moods, using some of the composer's lesser piano pieces.

Then came Orpheus to Gluck's beautiful music, with Michael Maule and Melinda Plank as Orpheus and Euridice in the realistically portrayed underworld and Elysian Fields of the Greek Legend, using the entire company for death figures, Furies, Mourners and heavenly Spirits up to the tragic climax when Orpheus is compelled to look at Euridice, who cannot understand his avoidance, and death engulfs them both.

Owing to a late start, Weber's Invitation to The Dance and Piano Duet by Charles Magnan and Robert Philips had to be left out. The finale was a free extravaganza to the Mendelssohn Concerto in G minor. In this the heavy piano-playing at two pianos was quite in keeping, but not in the Orpheus pleading song, which demanded a finer sense of its sentiment and pure harmony, instead of sounding like a strong finger exercise!

The Andante danced by Irina Borowska and Michael Maule was a specially charming moment, though the entire company, that included Frank Bourman, formerly associated with our local ballets, gave fine interpretations. Particularly impressive were the high and low antics of the four men, the entire choreography and direction being to the credit of Zachary Solov. It was rather startling on the stage afterwards to be asked by Irina Borowska if I spoke Russian; and, of course she could speak English. We are still a lazy people at conversations in other languages!

Nelly Montague First And Always Interested In Art

tended the exhibits of art the artists used to hold in their own studios—many of them tents—for want of a central gallery. I knew almost all of them and was especially sympathetic because I had wanted to try sculpturing myself. I started studying but ill health put a stop to all that.

"When my husband and I moved back to town it was in the dark of the depression and the artists were still scattered through the woods, holding open houses to show their work, serving tea but selling little.

"The situation was quite desperate for some of them. It was an artist friend, E. M. Heath (in private life Edda Heath Pappel) who talked with a real estate agent about founding a permanent gallery.

"From these talks came the first gallery, a former music studio with a skylight, now the Beardsley Room of the Carmel Art Association Gallery."

Nelly Montague was asked to be the first curator. "We all brought Oriental rugs and we dolled up the room and on the very first day, the depression notwithstanding, I sold the first picture."

The curatorship was a position Mrs. Montague held from 1934 to 1937 and from 1945 to her retirement in 1950. The late John Montague, who is equally well remembered in Carmel with great affection, also became so interested in gallery activities that the association board made a co-curatorship of the position for the husband-wife team during their later years there, and Mr. Montague took on considerable responsibility even though he was for much of the time a convalescent from a serious illness.

For the past ten years, Mrs. Montague has made her home at the family ranch in Shasta County. She is living now at the Pappel home at Lincoln and Thirteenth.

Future plans of the local chapter include a Beaux Arts ball to be presented with all the traditional festive touches of the old days when the ball was held at the Del Monte Hotel (the 1961 affair will be on Cannery Row under a mammoth canopy), the second of a series of five color slide lectures supplied by the national federation, a workshop in Sumi painting set for June, and an exhibition of American Indian art to be held at the Laky galleries March 14-17.

Establishment of a local chapter of the federation was an act of real worth to the communities of the Peninsula, Mrs. Montague feels. The federation itself, which carries much well-deserved prestige everywhere, was founded 50 years ago at the instigation of Elihu Root, whose interest as a statesman in easing the way of art circulating between this continent and Europe is well known.

A long-range plan, Mrs. Montague says, but one which is perfectly practicable, is the establishment of a permanent center for all the arts with museum, workshops, lecture rooms and resident instructors. This the chapter hopes can be built in a location outside the corporate limits of the Peninsula communities, but in a situation easily accessible to all.

During the past year the chapter, as yet without a home, has used facilities of Carmel High School and Sunset School for presentation of workshops, lectures and meetings, as well as the college.

Last December the group, with the advice and help of Roderick L. Dewar, became a non-profit corporation.

The interim board headed by Mrs. Montague has also been succeeded by a slate of elected officers including Robert W. Nelson, president; Mrs. Rama Stearns, treasurer and vice president; Edgar Bissantz, recording secretary; Miss Helen Denecke, corresponding secretary; Mrs. L. E. Churchill, membership chairman; Leonard Heller ,project development chairman; Victor Velissaratos, housing chairman; Mrs. Douglas MacGregor, hospitality chairman, and Mrs. Montague, publicity chairman. —Raylyn Penney.
